

Assessment Date: ____/____/____ Student: _____ Examiner: _____
Words Read Correctly (WRC): _____ Errors: _____ Notes: _____

Schools in Brazil

Children in Brazil begin school when they are five. Most children in towns and cities attend school although there are still some children who do not do so. Before they are five they can attend pre-school groups or nurseries. Children are expected to remain in school until the age of fifteen, when they can choose either to leave or to continue in secondary education until they are seventeen. In secondary schools they can learn skills for certain jobs or prepare to move on to universities.	15 31 46 63 76 86
There are many private schools in Brazil. These are usually found in the large towns and cities and are attended by children from middle and upper class families.	101 114
The school day is broken into two sessions. The first session starts at 7:15am and ends at 11:45am while the second starts at 2:30pm and finishes at 5:00pm. Children will attend one or the other session.	131 148 154
Some schools have computers that can be used by pupils and there is a new scheme being implemented in state schools - "One Laptop per Child". Many families now have access to computers either at home or in community centers.	170 183 193
Basic resources are provided at schools - books, notebooks, pencils, rulers - but supplies are sometimes limited.	204 208
There are after school activities involving sports - football, handball, volleyball, table tennis, athletics - and competitions take place between schools. Music is also enjoyed during and after school.	219 231 235

Children in Brazil begin school when they are five. Most children in towns and cities attend school although there are still some children who do not do so. Before they are five they can attend pre-school groups or nurseries. Children are expected to remain in school until the age of fifteen, when they can choose either to leave or to continue in secondary education until they are seventeen. In secondary schools they can learn skills for certain jobs or prepare to move on to universities.

There are many private schools in Brazil. These are usually found in the large towns and cities and are attended by children from middle and upper class families.

The school day is broken into two sessions. The first session starts at 7:15am and ends at 11:45am while the second starts at 2:30pm and finishes at 5:00pm. Children will attend one or the other session.

Some schools have computers that can be used by pupils and there is a new scheme being implemented in state schools - "One Laptop per Child". Many families now have access to computers either at home or in community centers.

Basic resources are provided at schools - books, notebooks, pencils, rulers - but supplies are sometimes limited.

There are after school activities involving sports - football, handball, volleyball, table tennis, athletics - and competitions take place between schools. Music is also enjoyed during and after school.